R2R BASEBALL ACADEMY

FULL PROCESS

GET EVALUATED:

Fill out our "Free Player Evaluation" form on website and submit. Our staff will evaluate all metrics, measurables, academics and social media links. If you're still a potential candidate, we will send you a video upload form for additional evaluation. There you will send us clips and film of pitching, hitting, defense, and/or highlights, whichever the player fits the position category for. You can send up to 5 videos per category as well as explain the video and breakdown any recent updates to yourself.

EVALUATION DECISION & FAMILY CONSULTATION:

After video submission are completed, we will get back to you within 24 hours to let you know if your student-athlete could be a potential fit for the program. If interested, R2R invites the family to a 30-minute video/phone call with owner, Jeff White to discuss the recruiting process, services, expectations, and the path going forward. Please have any/all questions ready. If we find your student-athlete is "not" a good fit at the current time, we will always leave you with positive feedback on how that player may need to develop going forward. Spots are limited, so finding a good fit is imperative for everyone's success.

OFFICIAL ENROLLMENT

Once both parties agree to proceed, the family receives and signs the R2R contract agreement. Any required payment is completed, and the recruiting process officially begins. Following enrollment, families will receive the college selection worksheet, and skills video instructions to begin preparing for the recruiting process.

PLAYER DEVELOPMENT & MECHANICAL REFINEMENT

R2R initially evaluates areas of the player's game that could benefit from improvement. This may include mechanical adjustments to pitching, hitting, or fielding, along with guidance on strength and conditioning and mental performance when appropriate.
Player development may continue throughout the recruiting process as needed.

SKILLS VIDEO PREPARATION & PRODUCTION

R2R works with the player and family to coordinate the creation of a skills video as early as reasonably possible, depending on the player's schedule and readiness. Players are expected to follow R2R's filming guidelines and submit the requested footage to ensure their skills are accurately and professionally represented to college coaches. R2R provides guidance on filming angles, specific drills, and the footage needed to effectively showcase the player's abilities to college coaches. Once the necessary footage is collected, R2R organizes and edits the clips into a completed skills video.

COLLEGE SELECTION & RECRUITING STRATEGY

Players and families will be asked to identify approximately 20–30 colleges they may be interested in attending. This list serves as a starting point for R2R to better understand the player's preferences, including academics, location, financial considerations, and desired level of competition.

Using our experience and evaluation of the player's abilities, R2R will help identify realistic college opportunities that align with the student-athlete's goals. While family preferences are important, our recruiting strategy will focus on programs where we believe the player has a reasonable opportunity to compete and contribute. College selections may be adjusted throughout the recruiting process as new opportunities and interests develop.

COLLEGE COACH OUTREACH & RECRUITMENT

Once the player's skills video is completed and potential colleges have been identified, R2R will begin actively promoting the student-athlete to college coaches. Through established coaching relationships and targeted outreach, R2R will present the player's skills video, athletic metrics, academic information, and other relevant details to programs where we believe the player may be a strong fit.

As coaches evaluate the player and express interest, R2R will communicate with the family, provide recruiting guidance, and help identify potential opportunities. College outreach and player development may continue simultaneously throughout the recruiting process.

RECRUITING INTEREST & COLLEGE OPPORTUNITIES

As college coaches express interest, R2R will communicate relevant recruiting developments to the player and family and provide guidance throughout the process.

College coaches and their respective institutions are responsible for determining roster availability, scholarship opportunities, financial aid, and potential offers. R2R does not control these decisions. Players and families are encouraged to evaluate their opportunities based on academics, location, affordability, athletic fit, and their personal goals before making a final college decision. Players are expected to respond promptly and professionally to college coaches and keep R2R informed of any direct communication, recruiting interest, or changes in their recruiting status.

ONGOING SUPPORT & FINAL COLLEGE SELECTION

As recruiting opportunities develop, R2R will continue communicating with the player and family, providing guidance and evaluating potential opportunities based on the student-athlete's abilities, interests, and goals. Our objective is to help players explore suitable college opportunities while maintaining realistic expectations throughout the recruiting process. The number of opportunities available will vary based on each player's abilities, academic qualifications, recruiting timeline, and the needs of individual college programs. Ultimately, the decision to accept or decline an offer rest with the student-athlete and their family. R2R's recruiting services and responsibilities will conclude in accordance with the terms outlined in the signed R2R Recruiting Agreement.